

2024-2025 NEW DRAMATISTS RESIDENCY APPLICATION INFORMATION

When Are New Applications Accepted?

The 2024-2025 submissions window opens on Monday, July 22 at 10am EDT and closes on Monday, August 5, 2024, at 11:59pm EDT. It is in your best interest to gather the three documents required to upload to the application—your bio/resume and two "blind" scripts—early in the window, and submit your application in one session. Please do not wait until the last day.

Eligibility

Any playwright who resides in and has the legal right to work in the United States may apply for the 7-year residency at New Dramatists as long as they can meet the submission requirements of 2 full-length plays and a biography or resume.

All resident playwrights are required to show documents for I-9 form verification; these documents will be reviewed (as necessary) throughout a writer's seven-year residency. Please note New Dramatists is not in the position to be a visa sponsor.

2024-2025 NEW DRAMATISTS RESIDENCY APPLICATION INFORMATION

How Does the Selection Process Work?

PANELISTS: Over the course of ten months, from September to June, a seven-person panel, comprised of New Dramatists' current resident writers, alumni playwrights, and outside theatre professionals, read the submissions. The panel is completely different every year. Special efforts are made to balance the panel in terms of aesthetic sensibilities, gender, race, ethnicity, geography, and age, as diversity is crucial to the adjudication process. The only people who know the panel members' identities are the New Dramatists' admissions staff.

CIRCULATION: All applicants submit two full-length works and designate an "A" play and a "B" play. All "A" plays are read in the initial round. As applicants advance through the process, their "B" plays are read. For the Initial Round, reading is blind, i.e., applicant names are not attached to the plays being read. In the Semi-Final and Final Round, names are disclosed to the readers. (In addition, each current resident playwright has the option to recommend one applicant who is guaranteed to have both the "A" and "B" plays read by different readers in the Initial Round. This does not impact the applicant's status.)

DECISION-MAKING: The panel meets three times between January and June to discuss the plays and, by consensus, winnow the list of applicants and ultimately determine the incoming group.

NOTIFICATION: Status notifications are sent on a rolling basis: the first round of letters goes out in February. The second round of letters goes out in April. We will also email finalists and request artistic statements from them in April, with a late May deadline. The final round of letters goes out in June. Writers who are accepted into New Dramatists are notified in June. If your mailing address and/or other contact information changes, please notify admissions@newdramatists.org

Please Do Not Submit:

- Short one-act plays or 10-minute plays, whether collected or alone (Thematically connected short plays will not be accepted as a single full-length play submission.)
- Recommendation letters
- Translations of previously published material
- Screenplays and/or teleplays
- Plays in hard copy or published formats.
- Special thanks page, hyperlinks, development opportunities, residencies, production histories, awards, or any information that reveals your identity within your script submissions.

Please download and read the Guidelines for Resident Playwrights before applying.

Please do not wait until the last minute to submit your materials.

We do not have control over how many applicants are in the system at any given time, and we do not have control over your internet speed. Please plan accordingly.
